As a developer, I would like to be able to store my notes as Markdown

As a developer I want to have a calendar view of all my notes to be able to tell which entry is for which day

As a developer I want to have a pomodoro timer to keep myself focused and on task

As a developer, I would like to have a function to export pdf of the task

As a developer I would like to have both a calendar with my events/tasks and organized folders that don't correspond to specific times/dates

As a developer, I would like to have an option to see the tasks in order of their deadlines without having to click on a date.

As a developer, I would want to have a way to separate different journal entries for different projects I'm working on

As a developer, I would like to have a feature that marks when I've started/finished a task so that I can improve on time management.

As a developer, I know how invasive and predatory our data-driven market is. I care about privacy and open-source software that stays offline to minimize data theft and mitigate my personal privacy breaches.
